Tur Jackson Dispatch suggests that since Memphis can supply all the necessary hotel accommodations the National Democratic Convention be held here. This is a good suggestion and one that cannot fail to commend itself to the members of the National Democratic Committee. Many important conventions have been held in this city, beginning with that of 1849, at which John C. Calhoun was the principal speaker, and from them have been dated many of the reforms that have tended to advance the growth and prosperity of the South. If the Democratic National Convention is held here next year it would afford the APPEAL just the opportunity it seeks to press upon the attention of the Democratic party the importance of nominating a Southern statesman for the Vice-Presidency. It would sustain the convention in a policy that establish a manufacturing town to be arrival of foot-sore and semi-dilapidated would certify to the healing of the nation. called Sheffield, on the south bank of the gold-seekers from the surrounding counvention will be held here.
